Pullboy Soft Fusion waste collector pull-out technology from WESCO®

Convenient partner in the sink cabinet

Alongside the waste collector system, it is becoming increasingly common to also install the technical equipment for water preparation in the sink cabinet. For additional convenience in the kitchen, boiling, filtered or sparkling water flows directly from the tap. With the Pullboy Soft Fusion pull-out technology, the waste management is still accommodated in the area under the sink, while the new components of the special faucet are also given the space they need.

The easy-to-install Pullboy Soft Fusion waste collector pull-out technology from WESCO® combines high-quality waste containers with water preparation systems from various manufacturers. One or two containers are positioned in the sturdy frame on the right, leaving space on the left for a boiling water reservoir, for example. In the 600-millimeter-wide sink cabinet, 240 millimetres of installation width are available for water conditioning, while the rest is taken up by the waste separation system.

Smooth-running and flexible

Pullboy Soft Fusion with full pull-out is designed for cabinets with a loose front panel and is available in the system heights 320 and 480 millimetres. The container volume varies between 16 and 29 litres. Individual lids for the containers are included in the scope of delivery. With a system depth of just 330 millimetres, the space needed for the siphon and water connections, plus hose and cable routing, is taken into account.

The robust and durable WESCO® system can be mounted on the side wall in just a few steps. In the process, and when attaching the front panel, the system can be flexibly adapted to the individual installation situation. The full pull-out is smooth, the softly closing mechanism quiet
