New motifs in the ACCOMODA® range from Naber

Strong images in the niche

Choosing the niche rear wall is one of the highlights of kitchen planning. Consumers are often surprised by the wide range of image motifs and their own design options. The kitchen accessories provider Naber has extended its ACCOMODA® niche rear wall range with beautiful new motifs, thus emphasising the importance of the niche for an individual room concept.

Each niche rear wall motif adds a strong feature to the interior design. Delicate grasses in the morning light celebrate the beauty of nature, while an imposing skyline gives the kitchen a cosmopolitan flair. Keen hikers opt for the monumental mountain backdrop, while cooking enthusiasts enjoy a tasteful arrangement of herbs and spices.

The wide range of motifs also includes coastal scenes, ears of grain, fruit and coffee beans, copper, concrete and brick effects, and a whole lot more. The individual elements of the image can, to some extent, be rearranged according to individual preferences. If the niche rear wall is to be a single colour, the exact desired shade can be ordered from the RAL Classic colours. If the customer wishes to use their own photo motif, this is also easily done with the configurator.

The rear wall as a notice board with magnetic function

In the Naber webshop, the niche rear wall is shown in its typical 1:4 format, and also as an element of a fitted kitchen, which gives a good impression of the actual proportions of the image elements. Other free surfaces can also be fitted with a decorative rear wall element in any desired size.

provide many practical benefits. Both the aluminium composite panel and the acrylic glass panel are heat resistant and colourfast, easy to clean and can also be fitted with splash protection. Both material versions are available in 3.5- and 16-millimetre thicknesses and with a matt or glossy surface.

One of the increasingly popular features is the rear wall that can be used as a blackboard and written on with chalk. Another is the magnetic function, which is possible for aluminium composite panels. For yet another type of finish, a special paint is used to give the niche rear wall a brushed aluminium look. As accessories for aesthetic perfection and exclusivity, we recommend wall connection and angle profiles as well as LED top lights for the optimal illumination of the colour surface or the image motif.
