Review interzum 2025

Smart recycling with WESCO® waste systems

The impressive variety of WESCO® waste systems was thoroughly examined and tested at the interzum 2025. Kitchen accessories supplier Naber showcased robust and aesthetically appealing solutions for all cabinet types and installation scenarios, ensuring outstanding ease of use.

Representatives from the furniture industry were particularly interested in innovations such as the Pullboy Soft Fusion, a smooth-running front pull-out system that leaves ample space for the water conditioning equipment. The possibilities for customs-made solutions and their series production were also discussed at the trade fair. Naber draws on its experience and expertise to develop first-class solutions for the limited storage space in kitchen cabinets.

The range of WESCO® waste systems has grown over decades, always maintaining a consistently high level of quality. Robust classics with full pull-out rails for floor mounting have been supplemented by space-saving systems for easy side wall mounting. The system can be flexibly adapted to meet the individual installation requirements.

ples, are explained in the brochure “Installation systems 2025”, which is available for download at naber.com. Naber’s SELECTAkit® range includes further tried-and-tested classics for household waste management. Naber offers a full range of kitchen accessories, including contemporary lighting technology, and maintains a long-standing partnership with Domus Line, a manufacturer of high-quality LED lighting systems. At the joint stand with the Italian brand manufacturer, the waste collectors were displayed side by side with the furniture lighting.

Rethinking production resources with a focus on the circular economy, which was formulated as the guiding theme of this year’s interzum, is in line with the goal of waste separation in private kitchens. Recyclable materials are kept in the loop and not just discarded. The enduring quality of the WESCO® waste systems delivers further benefits for sustainable waste management, providing consumers with lasting satisfaction.
